ANOTHER MEETING.

The public (in contradistinction) to the private meeting of that heterogeneous conglomeration of the disaffected of this community, yelept Ferrets-disaffected towards "all the world and the rest of mankind,"-because having had "their day," and partaken bountifully of "the good things" that were then going round; and, now that the scales are turned, and they find themselves "going up," are most strenuously "kicking against the pricks" -was held last night, according to notice, away up in the "sky parlor" of the Custom House-away from the din and noise of this terrestrial sphere. In that aeriel spot there gathered together the remnants of the Ferrets-about thirty, sad, dejected looking objects, pitiable to behold-no enthusiasm-no animation-no life-no nothing. It was stale-flat-unprofitable. The brethren straggled in-spoke in accents low, and seemed anxious to get out. To be sure there were some enquiries as to the "trai tor"-so they termed him-who had betrayed the secrets of the solemn conclave held on Tues day night, and sundry threats of dire vengeance were muttered against Lim, should he dare polute the august assemblage again by his un holy presence-but we reckon they were threats only-never intended to be carried out-all brutum fulmen-as people that talk big and "blow" loudest, seldom act. But to go on with the meeting-there was Mr. McKenzieof course-and the two Messrs. Whittlesey's-O. C. and C. W., and Hill & Tucker, and Walter Penn, esq., and Ex-collector Ensey, and Friend Hawxhurst, and Justice Moore and the ex-British minister, who came over to preach to the U. S. soldiers, and finally took such a liking to the colored folks that he went to teaching the pickaninnies; and "the youth to fortune and to fame unknown," and Mr. Smith, and Mr. Brown, and Mr. White [W. W.], and the "Cottage" man, and the man that wanted to be so cruel as to pitch the Gazette's reporter out of the third story of that great high building-the very thought makes us shudder-and some few others, mostly strangers, and not worthy of special note. Mr. S. F. Beach came in late, but being nominated as a delegate to attend the Big Ferret meeting, that is to come off on the 17th, he most re spectfully declined the honor, and shortly thereafter withdrew.

Mr. McKenzie was called to the chair by Mr. Penn, and Mr. O. C. Whittlesey appointprivate meeting, was not present.

Mr. McKenzie, who, it appears, was Chair man of the Committee appointed at the meeting on Tuesday night, to nominate delegates that the City Council shall order polls to be to the Convention, reported the following:

J. M. Stewart, Thos. Davey, C. A. Ware, Geo. Tucker, W. N. Berkley, Wm. Arnold, @ 00 00 W. J. Cowing, Robt. Portner, John Moore, Jeff. Tacey, G. O. Wunder, Lott Crocker, F. 00 00 E. Corbitt, John Slater, L. Hill, J. P. Agnew, and W. L. Penn.

Mr. Penn asked to be excused, but was not Mr. McKenzie's name was added, by a vote of the meeting, and the report then adopted. Mr. McKenzie stated that there would probably be a large attendance at the convention, as he understood delegates would be present from Richmond, Fredericksburg, Fairfax, Loudoun, Augusta, Rockingham, Shenandoah, Norfolk, Portsmouth, and other parts of the State; and as times were hard, especially with the brethren, there expenses should be made Jury, in session at Norfolk, who hail from this as light as possible, and he hoped the Union men of this place would extend to them all the incorrect. The members of that jury from this hospitality possible. He was sorry his house would be full, but he would try and accommodate some in the neighborhood. The kins, Sr. Union men of the State were poor now, and he thanked God for it-(there was not single amen to that expression)-they had to bear the burden now, and to be a Union man was a labor of love. It was moved, and carried, that seven of the brethren, as follows: Thos. Davy, W. P. Ensey, C. R. Joyce, W. J. Cowing, W. N Berkley, W. W. White and L. Hill be appointed a committee to make arrangements for accommodating the delegates from abroad, and to act as a committee of arrangements.

It was next resolved that eight more delegates for Alexandria be added to the list reported by the committee, and the following were thereupon duly chosen, viz:

J. P. L. Schrifgieser, Dr. A. J. K. Andrews Capt. Jas. Bowen, W. W. White, W. Willoughby, Jas. T. Close, F. Recker, and Chas. Whittlesey.

Mr. E. II. Delahay was nominated, but declined, on the ground that he was a non resi-

Mr. Thorpe was put in nomination, and his election insisted upon, but that gentleman declared that he was not a voter, and positively declined to have his name used.

Mr. Charles Joyce being nominated, deelined on the ground that he was not capable; which objection the chair thought was a very slight one, and asked Mr. J. if it was the only reason he had for declining-answered in the affirmative. A representative from the Bureau of Refu-gees, Freedmen and Abandoned Lands was present-but merely in his his official capacityto see that no harm came to any under his charge-as the threats used at the secret meeting, and the exposition made, might naturally lead to the supposition that somebody might

A singular affidavit has been made by George Barron, one of the depositors in the Merchants National Bank in Washington, by which it ap pears he recovered $300 from Mr. Huyck, the president of the institution, through the influence of some significent "demonstrations." He states that he tollowed the bank president so closely, watching him in all his comings and goings, and making such threats of vengeance that he was forced to restore the small deposit which he did by a cheek dated back to the 2d instant. It is said that Mr. Barron, who is a tinner, produced, during some of his repeated interviews with Mr. Huyck, a convincing argument in the shape of a soldiering iron, one of the implements of his craft. The episode has been productive of no little merriment.
